

Rocchio honored by R.I. Housing

March 16, 2014

Rhode Island Housing has recognized mortgage originator Rob Rocchio with the Originator of the Year Award for 2013. This makes back-to-back wins for Rocchio, honoring his commitment to creating affordable financing opportunities for first-time homebuyers. A Providence resident and Cranston native, Rocchio joined Rhode Island Housing in August 2001 and has assisted hundreds of Rhode Islanders on their path to homeownership.

One of the longest tenured originators in the Rhode Island Housing Loan Center, Rocchio increased his total number of closed loans by 15 percent in 2013.

Rocchio graduated from Cranston High School East and received his bachelor's degree from the University of Rhode Island with additional courses in financial planning and services at Bryant University. Rocchio serves home buyers living in Block Island, Cranston, Coventry, Jamestown, Narragansett, North Kingstown, South Kingstown and parts of Providence. Rhode Island Housing's loans are available through a participating lender or its Loan Center. For more information, visit rhodeislandhousing.org.
